Christopher Gomez, AICP

City of White Plains

Christopher Gomez, AICP, currently serves as the Commissioner of Planning for the City of White Plains, NY. Prior to appointment in 2015, Chris served as the Director of Planning and Development for the Village of Port Chester, NY and previously as an Associate Land Use Planner with the County of Westchester and with the New York City Department of Transportation Manhattan Borough Commissioner's Office.

Chris has an undergraduate degree in architecture and urban studies from Lehigh University and earned his M.S Planning degree from Columbia University. He currently serves on the Board of Directors of the Westchester Municipal Planning Federation (WMPF) and as an appointed Planning Commissioner in the City of Peekskill, NY. Chris also maintains professional certifications from the National Form Based Code Institute, National Development Council, Urban Land Institute, and National Charrette Institute.