If you have content that you would like included please email it to Jessica Dubuss at jdubuss2@law.pace.edu. Thank you!

Dear Haub Law Community,

As the year's end approaches, I wanted to thank you all for your hard work and commitment to staying healthy during this very challenging time. In August, we reopened our campus and began the fall semester resuming our academic program as the COVID-19 pandemic continued. Then last month, we returned to all remote learning until the end of the semester, and in February we intend to resume our mix of remote, in-person and hybrid courses.

I want to say how grateful I am for the efforts every member of our community has made during the fall semester. We know that COVID-19 is unpredictable and will continue to require our commitment to the safety of our community. Our process of continuing University operations in these circumstances has not been perfect, and I appreciate your patience as we continuously reviewed information we received from the Department of Health and New York State and adjusted our response accordingly. I want to offer a special thanks to our first-year students, who faced unforeseen challenges as you began your law school career during the pandemic. None of this has been easy for anyone, academically or personally, yet you persevered and even flourished!

I also want to thank those who have taken the time to communicate with me during the semester, and I hope you continue to do so. Feedback is critical to our understanding of student and community needs, and we share a common commitment to keeping our community healthy and safe. We finished fall semester safely because we were able to work together. We can't know how the pandemic will affect our spring semester, but your spirited commitment to Haub Law gives me confidence that we'll get through it together also.

I wish each of you the best as we enter the holidays, and I hope you enjoy a well-deserved winter break. I look forward to welcoming you to the Spring 2021 semester, eventually in-person.
