

Mary Mahon

Mary Mahon joined Westchester County in February 2010, as Special Assistant to the County Executive with responsibility for overseeing the implementation of the 2009 housing settlement. She is also the County's Director of Real Estate.

Mary is a lawyer, and formerly served as general counsel of the MTA and the Long Island Railroad. Prior to that, she was general counsel of New York City's Community Development Agency, which administered HUD funded community development block grants to programs throughout New York City.

Before entering the public sector, Mary spent ten years in the law department of Smith Barney where as vice president and director of law, she had responsibility for a wide range of regulatory issues.

Mary and her family have lived in Westchester County for the past 15 years.
