

Mack L. Carter, Jr.

White Plains Housing Authority

Mack considers himself a New Yorker, but he was born in South Carolina. Mack is married to Dr. Evelyne Eusebe-Carter, a prominent Obstetrician and Gynecologist. They have 3 adult sons and one daughter, Sophia who lives in Germany.

Mack grew up in the inner city of Brooklyn and attended New York City Public Schools. He is a Vietnam Era Veteran a product of the U.S. Air Force. He attended Long Island University and majored in science leading to a degree as a physician assistant. Mack earned both an Associate and Bachelor's Degree. Within a short time in the late 70's and early 80's he earned a Master's Degree in Community Health and Healthcare Administration and that was followed by a second Master's Degree in business with a concentration in management and finance. After being awarded his new degrees, he left the practice of Medicine and started his new career in Hospital Administration. Mack remained steadfast in his goal to become a leader. He was promoted many times while on his way up the ladder of success. Finally, in 1992 he rose to the position of Commissioner, President and CEO of Westchester Medical Center, the first African-American to be appointed and confirmed by Westchester County. He held the position for several years. In 1995, after 22 years of Public Service, Mack entered the private sector working as a senior manager with an HMO and healthcare finance company, until suddenly faced with another challenge.

In 2001, the Mayor of the City of White Plains and its diverse community called on Mack to return to public service. He was appointed to the Executive staff of the White Plains Housing Authority. The Housing Authority under Mack's direction achieved a rating by HUD as a "High Performer". Mack was promoted to Executive Director in 2002.

Mack's vision was to spearhead the development, design and eventual construction of a new White Plains Housing Authority that included: the Administration Building and Resident Resource Center, and replacement buildings at Winbrook, and the total rehabilitation of Lakeview Apartments and Schuyler DeKalb Apartments.

Mack's dream of the rebuilding of all public housing facilities and rehabilitation is no longer a dream but a reality.

Mack is currently a member of PHADA and he sits on the Board of Trustees. He is the past president of NYSPHADA and the Chairman Emeritus for the Juneteenth Committee for the City of White Plains.
