

Robert H. Thomas, J.D., LL.M.

William & Mary Law School & Pacific Legal Foundation

Robert H. Thomas (LL.M., Columbia Law; J.D., University of Hawaii Law School) serves as the Joseph T. Waldo Visiting Chair in Property Rights Law at William & Mary Law School in Williamsburg, Virginia, and also as the Director of Property Rights Litigation at Pacific Legal Foundation, a national public interest law firm focusing on property rights and individual liberty. Before becoming a public interest lawyer, for more than three decades he was in private practice in Hawaii and California where he focused on appellate law, regulatory takings, land use, voting rights, and eminent domain. He writes and publishes inversecondemnation.com, a widely read blog about eminent domain, takings, property, and land use law. He is a past Chair of the ABA's Section of State and Local Government Law, an elected member of the American Law Institute, and the Planning co-chair of ALI-CLE's long-running Eminent Domain & Land Valuation Litigation Conference.
