FBC 101
The ABCs of Form-Based Codes
at The NYS Judicial Institute
Pace Law School • White Plains, NY
Friday, May 8, 2015, 8:30am to 5:00pm

Note:
This class provides 8 AICP CM (including .5 Law), AIA CES, LA CES, CNU-A

This class also provides New York State CLE practice credits
(additional charge of $65 for 7 CLE credits)

This intensive one-day class gives a useful overview of the process of creating a form-based code. The class combines presentations and discussion with a hands-on exercise in observing a community’s built form, and the use of regulation to shape public space.

Participants will see how form-based codes are essentially different from conventional land use regulation, and how they can solve many of the problems created by conventional zoning.

Thank you to our co-sponsor!

Mary Madden brings experience working with communities across the U.S. on coding projects. Her firm Ferrell Madden is among the leaders in the field of form-based coding.

Joel Russell is a practicing planner, attorney and executive director of FBCI.

To register for this course, go to www.formbasedcodes.org

Registration includes a light breakfast, lunch and all course materials. The standard price for the one-day class is $250. An early registration discount takes off $25 for those who sign up before April 25. Organizations sending three or more staff will enjoy a $50 discount per person. Note - CLE credits given for an additional fee of $65.